Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 2. This usually quiet old town is today gay and bright with people and crowded to its farthest limit by those who have come down to see the great game between Annapolis and West Point. The rivalry between these two academies is never so marked as it is when their respective elevens line up on the big gridiron to battle for the championship. The result was that the game today drew together a large audience that was divided in its loyalty to the two teams. As was to be expected, the adherents of the middies largely outnumbered those who were on hand to cheer for the future generals. Many came on this morning from Baltimore to see the sport, but an even larger crowd came down from Washington on the special trains. Crowds Gather.

The Army and Navy Club sent down a large contingent of members, representing in about equal proportions the army and the navy. There were many men who are prominent in official and social life at the capital, and judging by the appearance of the field this afternoon, it would seem as though there could not be many younger furnished them in acordance to the impl officers in either branch of the service left terms of the resolution, since the sta at their desks at the War and Navy Departments.
The special trains reached here between

I and 2 o'clock and brought a large number of the fair sex, all of whom were decked out either with the blue and gold of the navy or the black and gray of West Point. It is a perfect day for a foot ball game, the field is in the finest sort of condition, and all signs point to a sharp and interesting game. Opinions as to the relative merits of the two teams vary about as the colors that are worn, for both contingents are loyal to their own sides, though the fine showing that the Pointers made in their game with Princeton has made them rather the favorites with outsiders. Com-paratively little betting has been done this afternoon, though many wagers have been laid by army and navy officers in quiet corners on the club before they came down. ANNAPOLIS, Md. Dec. 2 .- The West Point foot ball eleven, with its substitutes, stopped over night in Baltimore, and arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning looking fresh and vigorous for the encounter with the middles, and great determination depicted on their countenances to leave the field victorious or die in the attempt. They are attended by Trainers Laurie Bliss, Graves, Williams and Corbin, with a large delegation of the admirers of the boys in gray from the vicinity of West Point. Mr. Bliss said in Baltimore last evening that the men have shown great improvement since he began to train them, and that while they are not confident of defeating the "middles" they are going to Annapolis for that purpose. "The team is a much better one than that which represented West Point last year," he continued, "and it would be better still if we had more time to practice. It is balanced very well, the line and the backs being of uniform the Yale game as far as I have been able, ceiver.. Today—Frey agt. Soter; order finally Today—Frey agt. Soter; order finally

With the army boys came a host of friends, and large crowds went to Annapois. Admiral Gherardi of the United States Atlantic squadron, with headquarters at oklyn, is an ardent admirer of foot ball. test. "Of course I expect our boys to win." said he. "That's just what we have come down for. After the game I will return to New York direct.'

Our Weather Perfect.

Had the weather been made to order it could not possibly have been more perfect for chasing the pigskin. The game to be played here this afternoon is the fourth annual game played between the Naval Academy and the West Point Military Academy, the cadets having been beaten twice on their own grounds and the "middies" once at Annapolis, leaving the games two to one in favor of Annapolis. Every effort has been made this year by the Army Athletic Association to put the boys in gray hape that they would be able to cope with their antagonists in blue. Former of the contests between West Point and Annapolis who were not present today will find little difficulty ing the scene on the grounds. During the early morning hours and throughout the forenoon friends and admirers of both teams were arriving and a steady current of enthusiastic humanity flowed toward the grounds. There was not a vacant seat left among the three thousand reserved for friends and fully 15,000 people will have to be content with standing room around the students of Uncle Sam's two great military educational institutions.
Annapolis is in holiday attire. Business is almost suspended and the day given 'The magnificent decorations of blue and gold on every hand, from the railroad depot to the academy grounds, the academy buildings draped in one mass of bunting, formed a striking contrast to the somber gray of the stone buildings of the Military Academy at West

A Brilliant Scene.

The steady stream of visitors wending their way toward the scene of the coming encounter, the enthusiasm of the friends of the gallant naval cadets, the ladies gally bedecked with Annapolis colors, formed a scene which the usually quiet, undemonstrative people of the historic town of Anolis will not soon forget. Every one some token of his or her sympathies, and notwithstanding the fact that the sympathy was largely with Annapolis, and its outnumbered those of the cadets, when the cadet team and followers appeared upon the ground, headed by cool-headed Capt. "Kit" Carson, wearing a headed Capt. "Kit" Carson, wearing a "mascot" on his left breast in the shape of a rabbit's foot, bedecked with the college colors, blue and gray ribbon, a mighty cheer went up from the excited throng and a thousand voices sang:

"Rah-tat-tat-da-boom-da-ave. They are on the top today; Rah-tat-tat-da-boom-de-aye."

And as the echoes died away in the distance, from as many more throats rangent the war cry of the boys in gray: 'Rah-rah-ray-bang

West Point, West Point, army. Washington Arrivals. At 10 o'clock a salute was fired upon the arrival of Assistant Secretary McAdoo. The crowd was considerably augmented at 1 o'clock by the arrival of two special trains from Washington. Forty West Point army officers and a number of ladies of the post also reached here this morning. The air is a deafening turmoil, caused by the grating noises issuing from tin horns and every other conceivable instrument calculated to make a din.

The Cadets' Center.

Bookwalter was injured in a wedge, but war soon on his feet. Cadets build their Woodruff flying wedge; Stacy then darted through the navy for five yards. Stacy tried to run around cadets' end, which was stopped by Lott. Finding it impossible to work through West Point's center. Bagley yards. Bookwalter hurt.

The Game Started. The game was started at 2:05, West Point's ball on line up. Carried it forward for fifteen yards and lost it on downs. Bagley punted fifty yards. Half-back Shelton and carried forward twenty yards. The S iggle is Lively. son ran twenty yards. Stacy then stole the ball and went around Annapolis end for five yards. Guard Morris injured. Ball in West Point's territory. Carson punted toward Navy goal for forty yards.

Annapolis has tried for three succesive downs to break West Point's center with-out avail, and forced to again punt. West Point then got ball in Navy's territory and worked it forward five yards, Half Back Kimball was injured, Clever triple pass of West Point and Stacy works around Navy's end for five yards. Amor and Smith make hole in Navy's center, offside play by West Point gives Navy five yards.

The Cadets' Superior Play. Annapolis loses ball and Stacy steals it and gains five yards. West Point steadily carried ball toward a touchdown. West Point loses ball on downs. Navy vainly tried to buck Army center for three suc-

First down ball on twenty-yard line. Ball on Navy's ten-yard line, when West Point lost ball to middies. Annapolis then made steady gain through West Point's center. Annapolis has ball on dividing line. Navy punts and West Point gets ball, but loses it on fumble.

In the Presentation of the Tariff Bill follows: to the House.

There is a possibility that the democratic will not be able to begin the considerat of the tariff bill in the House as soon they designed to. By the terms of the re lution, which permitted the ways a means committee to sit during the rece the republicans were insured a period ten days after getting the majority in which to prepare their minority bill. The Wilson bill was given to them Wednesday, but they may have groun for a claim that the whole bill was r ment and estimates which should accom ny the bill which is necessary to the pre ration of a report was not then finished, has not yet been completed. The wi committee is to meet on Monday, when it is thought this statement will be ready. It is not improbable that the republicans will claim that their ten days will be not until then. If this claim were made and sustained, the measure could not be taken up in the House before Wednesday, the 13, which would leave but little time before the Christmas holidays. Of course, there is no chance of passing the bill before the holidays, even if taken up earlier than Meanwhile, the internal revenue features of the bill have not been added to yet, and there is a possibility that they will be carried in a separate measure. If the bill is reported without any of these features, they cannot be added by way of an amend-ment under the rules of the House, not being germane.

A Small Fracas.

There was a dispute at the race track yesterday between Fred W. Brooks, colored, and Wm. H. Du Bois about the betting, and Brooks, it is charged, called Du Bois a harsh name. The latter used his cane on the former's head, and Policeman Boland called time when he arrested them. The unpleasant meeting cost the men $5 each.

of the Playing in New York. NEW HAVEN, Dec. 2.-The Register prints a long leader on the Thanksgiving affinity between them, though Yale is by no means lacking in respect for its New Jersey contemporary. The New York game, it says, has nothing of the university atmosphere, and is practically a colossal exhibition game run on business principles. Since the only excuse for its existence is failure to retain its individuality is a good reason for giving it up. The opposition to the Thanksgiving game has been growing slowly, but it has been growing steadily. Since the Thanksgiving game does not possess the qualities that make the Springfield game a contest of colleges in presence of their respective families, there is good reason for giving it up and substituting a game at Cambridge, a return game at New Haven and a possible third game at Springfield. LARGE BANK DEPOSITS.

Special Dispatch to The Evening Star.

NEW YORK, Dec. 2 .- For the third consecutive morning London prices for "Americans" came higher, and the tone of the market was reported as dull, but very strong, and foreign houses here again remarked the increasing demand for odd amounts of our securities.

Our markets opened at about last night's closing figures, except the industrials, the first prices for which were 1-2 to 3-4 higher, and they showed a disposition to resist the declining tendency, which has been so marked of late. This was particularly the case in sugar refining certificates, a prominent Hebrew house and its following, who seemed to have unlimited confidence in their position, taking all offerings at advancing quotations.

A mild sensation was created when the following dispatch from Boston was published: "Whereas the net manufacturing profits since the last dividend ordinarily applicable to the payment of dividends are offset by necessary shrinkage in customers' accounts and other assets, therefore,

Resolved, that no dividend on the preferred stock be declared at this meeting." The common stock which had been fairly strong in this market all morning broke suddenly from 37 5-8 to 36 with no sales between, but closed fairly steady at the decline. In Boston where the preferred stock is dealt in it was offered down ten points below yesterday's bid price without buyers. Outside of this incident the market buyers. Outside of this incident the market was without feature beyond the disposition of the room traders to "even-up" over Sunday, and their sales to realize profits caused slight concessions all along the line, but the closing was very steady, with every indication of better prices next week.

Sterling exchange very dull with a weakening tendency, posted rates nominally 484-1-2a487 1-2.

The weekly statement of the associated the weekly statement of the associated banks was again very favorable and fully up to expectations. The changes are as follows: Reserve increased, $5,261,725; loans increased, $4,288,400; specie increased, $3,375,200; legals increased, $4,494,900; deposits increased, $12,033,500; circulation decreased, $173,700.

An analysis of the above statement shows that the banks have gained over eight mil-lion dollars in lawful money, which, with an increase of loans of over four and a quarter millions, this latter change, by the way, being the best feature reported, bring the deposits up to over $12,000,000. Against this $3,000,000 additional reserve are re-quired, under the twenty-five per cent law, leaving $5,000,000 of the increase in lawful money to add to the surplus reserve, bring-ing that item up to $76,000,000.
